To whom it may concern,

Trnava University in Trnava, Faculty of Law organises international scientific conference Trnava Days of Law every two years. The time that passed since the last conference is considerably marked by the vast social changes and challenges. The law and politics strive to react to them not only at the domestic but also at international level. The Trnava Days of Law opted for the topic New Europe – Challenges and Expectations with the aim to discuss these issues in general and also in particular. Above all, Europe is facing the problem of openness. Discussion centres on the topics of openness of the European Union towards its citizens, the fortification of the human rights guarantees and the purpose of the collective approach towards prospective solutions. All of this is happening because of the importance and gravity of changing social, cultural, economic and geopolitical realities.

Aspects of the (post-post)modern age such as migration, economic and financial crisis, crisis of values, threat of terrorism, increasing political extremism or digitalisation of the life are only few of those which need to be effectively addressed by the law of the “Old Europe” in order to preserve the effectiveness of the law in democratic society. Hence, the ambition of the Trnava Days of Law is to discuss the capacity of the law to deal with the present changes in its external context. The main purpose of the conference is to stimulate academic and practical layers of the discourse about respective matters and to create the platform for face to face meetings of domestic and abroad legal scholars and practitioners.

Each section of the conference is sponsored by the respective department.

Participants are more than welcome to take part in the evening program – sightseeing of the Trnava and the reception with wine tasting.

Dear Madam/Sir,

Let me cordially invite You to Trnava and express my personal conviction that the conference would highly benefit from Your participation.
